HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic.
The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS
Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts,) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admixture of any kind.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, &c., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.
Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

Those who have no objection to the combination of the bitters, as stated, will use
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.
November 25, 1868.

DEBILITY,
Resulting from any Cause whatever; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, Induced by Severe Labor, Hardships, Exposure, Fevers, &c.
There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the appetite is strengthened, food is enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

PERSONS ADVANCED IN LIFE,
And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.
It is a well established fact that fully one half of the female portion of our population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health, or, to use their own expression, never feel well. They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.
To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN,
Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS without fail.
Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. They, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.
HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes:
Philadelphia, March 18, 1867.
"I find 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, cases of debility, and want of nervous action in the system.
Yours, truly, GEO. W. WOODWARD."

HON. JAMES THOMPSON,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.
Philadelphia, April 28, 1866.
"I consider 'Hoofland's German Bitters' a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it. Yours, with respect, JAMES THOMPSON."

FROM REV. JOSEPH H. KENNARD, D. D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.
Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear conscience and full confidence in my own sanity, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.
Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates St.

FROM REV. E. D. FENDALL,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.
I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic, to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.
Yours truly,
E. D. FENDALL.

SAYS PAT.
Well Pat have ye heard from Maine and Vermont?
I'm just afther hearing at Dority's, i mont?
That they've voted the Radical ticket
Completely, by lashin' majorities.
That's bad for the likes of us Pat,
Who were hopin' that Seymour would get
And I'm thinkin' they'd go for him yet ['em,
If the Radicals only would let 'em;
But if matters go on in this way,
Horatio's a worried rat,
"That's what I was sayin' to Murphy,"
Says Pat.
I'm bothered intirely, I am;
With this cry about "equal taxation,"
Will they tax such poor divils as us,
Like the illigant lords of the nation?
The leaders they gave us the cry,
And they told us right loudly to shout it;
They say, "keep it up! keep it up!
Or we'll go to the divil without it."
If that watchword is all we depind on,
I'm thinkin' our prospects are flat.
"That's what I was sayin' to Murphy,"
Says Pat.
I'm sorry the Dimmycrat Cont
Has yielded her helm to the "chivalry,"
For poor brother Tim he was left,
In a scrimmage with Wade Hampton's envy;
So of course he can't relish the joke, [says
Of crowin' 'em King Cuckolorum,
A dictatin' terms for themselves,
When submission alone should restore 'em,
It's not to my likin' as'al,
To be bossed in that fashion like that,
"That's what I was sayin' to Murphy,"
Says Pat.
You know in auld Ireland, Pat,
We went in to pull down aristocracy,
But there we got buildin' it up,
By votin' with rebel Democracy;
For didn't the British grandees,
Throw their gold and their guns into rebel,
To send our brave boys from the world, [dom,
And cripples, by taken they've trebled 'em.
British bullets and Irishman's ballots
Shouldn't both work together like that.
"That's what I was sayin' to Murphy,"
Says Pat.
It's time that auld Ireland's sane,
Should change their political status,
Or faith we shall vote ourselves back,
Where the chains that we fled from await
So Pat I've concluded at last, [us;
That Dimmocracy's all butineration,
And I'll go for the man that is true
To freedom, ourselves and the nation,
I'll vote for brave General Grant,
If I live till November, mark that,
"Just what I was sayin' to Murphy,"
Says Pat.

Cultivated Womanhood.
An Essay read by Miss Sallie A. Carter, of Manor Hill, this county, at the Teachers' Institute.
There has been, in all ages, a definite sphere assigned to woman. Man has put forth an interpretation of her mission, and she has lived to emulate the virtues and graces he has approved. Intuitively, she has aspired to win his admiration, and her tact has directed her to the fulfilment of what he required of her. So that his ideal of feminine character was embodied in the world of women around him. This assertion is general, and instances are admitted in which she has exceeded the standard of excellence, or failed to reach it. History, both sacred and profane, has crowned with laurels the memory of some whose noble and lovely lives have made their names sacred; whilst time and the grave have denied the mercy of forgetfulness to others, whose wickedness well deserved undying shame. Miriam, Deborah, Esther, Delilah, Jezebel are examples that tell how good or evil governed the lives and deeds of women; in the earlier ages; as ennobling or debasing influences actuated them as now. We ought to blame the culture not the soil." When the world was young, and good and wise men were by far the lewest, a woman's duty was restricted to physical labor, and supplying the bodily wants of her children; her accomplishment was dress; her highest honor to dance before her Lord and please him! The fortunate proprietor of her beauty might veil her face, and imprison her, subservient to his whims; ignorant, vain, degraded, fondled, or neglected; a slave she was, but still, the personation of his ideal. He wanted her no better; his soul inhabited the narrow realm of self, and acknowledged no equal. In countries where manhood is yet inert, womanhood still remains veiled, and imprisoned in degradation. But we blame not her original debasement upon man. Sin, her own disobedience, accomplished her downfall. As man emerges from the thraldom of the coeval curse, his elevation improves her station. But the progress of Truth, emanated from the Infinite, fixed in its laws as the "revolving spheres," and made subject to the mandate, "Let there be light," began its course, and there was light;—"the light which lighteth every man,"—faint at first, a single ray, penetrated the gloom of ignorance; then another; and another beamed; speeding with inconceivable velocity, and rotundness in traveling from that fixed soul star Right, until they reached the minds, most exalted upon the eminence of wisdom; and Solomon appreciated and portrayed the character of a wise and prudent woman, and warned against the froward and the foolish! Other than Jewish minds were brightened; Barbarian souls developed heroic passions, and faint rays of her coming glory reflected upon woman's inner life. How could she behold and worship greatness in her lord, and not catch its contagious spell? Watching for his success, her "heart fluctuating between hope and fear," triumphing in his victory, sharing in his defeat, reciting tales of his valor to his listening, wondering children; teaching them to emulate his virtues, and propitiate the gods she was warmed with the same spirit, enabled in his advancement, and immortalized in training her children to greatness of soul. Thus Spartan mothers incited their sons to deeds of valor, and Roman matrons vied to show their love of friends and country. Already woman's influence was felt. Yet were not all women good or pure, or noble. Cleopatra, with many others, wives and mothers of the great, are disgusting monuments of cruelty, hatred and revenge. But look at manhood! conquered foemen subjected to fiendish torture; mercy asleep; and peace unsought. Though intellect had progressed, moral grandeur was not man's aim, and woman lived in borrowed light; man was her teacher; she was the mirror of his mind, and with a mirror's properties, she distorts his imperfections, into more hideous shapes of wickedness. For we find whatever good or evil, beauty or nonsense a woman tries to copy, she will intensify.
But the star of Bethlehem arose, and heralded the approach of a new life. The night and storm of error fled before it. Christian light was dawning; brightening, shining more and more, unto the perfect day. "The true light, that lighteth every man," had come. Jesus talked with the woman of Samaria; found a Mary Magdalene; rewarded the faith of the Tyrophenician; and pardoned the woman, whose accusers fled, confused: at their own guilt. An Anna prophesied of him; a Mary sat at his feet to learn of him; for gospel truth alike irradiates the hearts of men and women. Here was the first hope of the weaker sex being elevated to the dignity of equality with man her brother. At first it seemed a narrow rock, lashing up to the wild sea of ignorance and superstition; but, the dark waters have gradually receded, till Christianity presents a broad platform of equal incentives to duty, and equal rewards for its faithful discharge. And to fulfil the infinite design, there must be equal use of means. Education must enlarge her mind, strengthen her energies, and expand her soul; otherwise, the dignity, the good, the beauty, she lost in Eden, can never be regained. Since they have appeared, and been held forth to her aspirations, she has marched toward the goal. Buffeted by persecutions enveloped in perils, attacked by prejudices, fettered by customs, good women have never been defeated; but still gained strength of soul, and lost not beauty of spirits. Noble men accorded them admiration—a thought too sweet for ill-balanced minds—and the contagion flattery spread among the ranks. Mock gallantry assailed the unwary; fashion poisoned with her feathered darts; and the dames of too many centuries were enervated and intoxicated by their follies. The stern voice of duty fell but faintly upon dull ears. Each was an imagined empress, graciously receiving the trophies of her knighted subjects. Beauty and titular royalty assumed their power over men's minds, and willing homage granted her the world realm. But she was still their ideal, worshiped in their hearts. "Some evils work their cure;" those who rule hearts, (as those who rule empires,) are often victims of treachery, cruelty and violence. Suspicion stands a sleepless sentinel within their breast; "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." Man, advancing still, and pressed with weightier cares feels the need of woman's aid. Sister's must stand by brothers in the fight, or poverty, wretchedness and woe, will win. At last duty's voice is louder than the "siren's song;" disgusted, ashamed of her effeminacy, she occupies a thinker's station; still is anxious for an actor's part. But the labor that invites her effort is in the busy world; and once outside the home circle, she is beset by dangers and difficulties on every side. Some positions of trust and profit she is by education unprepared to fill; for others must contend, at least compete with men whose chances of success derive their strength from the advantages of sex, rather than real merit; she must often encounter the mock gallant sentiment, which will not accept the real situation of things; but drives her back upon the idea that marriage is her destiny, and missing that, there is no hope for her. That notion has fed and fostered the idle, sentimental daughters of fashion, who neglect their souls eternal good to secure a matrimonial prize. We by no means accept them as examples of the standard of the world of American women of to-day. They stigmatize the reverend title of womanhood; and serve as targets for the satirist. They are spurious, counterfeits, fair on the face but of no intrinsic value.
The American woman of to-day is a thinking, praying, earnest-hearted worker. She does not claim to be the intellectual peer of the greatest man, but with all due womanly "shame-facedness" is persuaded that there are men who know less than she. She has done much to mould the hearts and minds of the present generation of nature's noblemen; she will do more to shape the destinies of the next. She reverently views ascending manhood, and feels a thrill of becoming pride that she is, his ideal. An ambition, altogether feminine, incites her to understand and aid his noblest aims, and share his highest aspirations. The wise and good recognize her as a helpmeet; they see a wider sphere opening before her, for which she must be prepared. Evil, through long ages gathering its workers, regardless of sex, (whilst false laws and customs bind one-half of the good to a state of mental and moral impotency,) defies its opposers and acknowledges only one possibility of overthrow—the proper culture of the young. Vice educates its youth, and where is Virtue's guardian? Cultivated womanhood conquers evils otherwise unmanageable, increases feminine loveliness, exalts true manhood, establishes national glory, promotes religion, generalizes intelligence, lessens the number of the frail and unfortunate, and rescues a weak sister-hood from the oppression of degraded men. But it must be an education of the soul, the heart, the mind; a cultivation that shall educe the greatest good; teach every girl to feel that she will make the world either better or worse; array the highest purest motives, and marshal all the faculties for action: that shall strengthen moral courage; lead to industry, economy, dexterity, ingenuity and domestic usefulness; divert the sympathies, and encourage that common sense which must destroy idle sentimentalism: that culture which, (while it gives all due importance to those accomplishments that are too often only arrayed to charm masculine admirers,) looks to motive yet beyond, and sees in our duty to the Infinite, the all sufficient incentive. All believe,

"The world
Is better than it once was and hath more
Of mind and freedom than it ever had,"

All claim that true nobility of soul is marching on; and if we add no char

☞A Convention of the colored people met in Pittsburgh on Tuesday last for the purpose of taking measures to secure the enfranchisement of the colored men of Pennsylvania.

☞After the election of United States Senator, the Gubernational question will open up. There are several prominent candidates and the race will be lively.

☞The Pennsylvania State Legislature will meet to day, Tuesday. On next Tuesday the election of a United States Senator will take place, and it is pretty generally believed that Mr. Scott's chance of being elected is pretty good. There is nothing sure in politics, therefore, we shall wait patiently for the result.

☞The Philadelphia Morning Post, started as a penny paper a year or so ago, has been very successful. On the first of January it made its appearance enlarged four columns and greatly beautified. This journal has always been well conducted and shows a great degree of enterprise in catering to the wants of its patrons. It is now a two-penny paper.

☞"THE RELICS OF THE CONFEDERACY."—In his article on the flight of Jeff. Davis, in the current number of Packard's Monthly, Mr. E. A. Pollard makes the remarkable statement that the bulk of the valuable documents of the Confederate Government, including the correspondence of Jefferson Davis, exists to-day in concealment; that many days before the fall of Richmond there was a careful selection of important papers, especially those in the office of the President, and letters which involve confidence in the North and in Europe, and that these were secretly conveyed out of Richmond and deposited in a place where they remain concealed to this time, and will probably not be unearthed in this generation. Mr. Pollard mentions the case of a single secret document which he was once permitted to see in Richmond, wherein certain parties offered to assist the Confederacy by supplying its Western armies for a whole year from the granaries and magazines of the North. Such important letters and other secret papers (says Mr. Pollard) still exist, were preserved from the wreck and fire of Richmond, and at this moment are kept in a manner and place which render them secure against discovery, loss or mutilation.

Amnesty Proclamation by the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24, 1868.

Whereas, The President of the United States has heretofore set forth several proclamations offering amnesty and pardon to persons who had been or were concerned in the late rebellion against the lawful authority of the Government of the United States, which proclamations were severally issued on the 8th day of December, 1863; on the 26th day of March, 1864; on the 29th day of May, 1865; on the 7th day of September, 1867, and on the 4th day of July of the present year; and

Whereas, The authority of the Federal Government having been re-established in all the States and Territories within the jurisdiction of the United States, it is believed that such prudential reservations and exceptions as at the dates of the said several proclamations were deemed necessary and proper, may now be wisely and justly relinquished, and that a universal amnesty and pardon for participation in said rebellion, extended to all who have borne any part therein, will tend to secure permanent peace, order, and prosperity throughout the land, and to renew and fully restore confidence and fraternal feeling among the whole population, and their respect for and attachment to the National Government, designed by its patriotic founders for the general good:

Now, therefore, be it known that I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, by virtue of the power and authority in me vested by the Constitution, and in the name of the sovereign people of the United States, do hereby proclaim and declare unconditionally, and without reservation, to all, and to every person who directly or indirectly participated in the late insurrection or rebellion, a full pardon and amnesty for the offence of treason against the United States, or of adhering to their enemies during the late civil war, with restoration of all rights, privileges and immunities under the Constitution and the laws which have been made in pursuance thereof. In testimony whereof I have signed these presents with my hand, and have caused the seal of the United States to be hereunto affixed.

Done at the city of Washington the 25th day of December, in the year of our Lord 1868, and of the Independence of the United States of America the ninety-third.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President.

F. W. SEWARD, Acting Sec'y. of State.

The pardon and amnesty proclamation just issued by the President includes Jeff. Davis, Breckinridge, Jacob Thompson, Mason, Slidell, and all others who were directly or indirectly engaged in the late insurrection or rebellion. The parties above named are now in foreign countries.

Flogging in Schools.

The following, from the Dubuque Herald, will be read with interest:

"In Chicago a parent has prosecuted a teacher in the public schools for brutally flogging one of his children.—This opens the old question which Solomon fondly supposed he had settled for all time to come when he declared that the rod must be applied to save the child. The wisdom of several centuries ago is repudiated, and there are those, neither few nor foolish, who insist that flogging, especially in schools, is neither healthy nor productive of good morals.

It is a very difficult question for solution by any general rule. School systems vary, and school governments must be varied to meet the requirements of different localities. The object in having a school is to have one good enough to accomplish the education of the pupils. To have such a school there must be adopted a system of government which shall most perfectly insure good order, obedience and interest. So much it is easy to affirm, but not so easy to declare what that system shall be in every case. The time was not long ago in which it was believed that the rod formed the central part of the correct system of school government. Then, too, there was always found a well seasoned birch in every household. The ideas of morality and correct behavior were, in those days, severe and stern, and the means to inculcate them were accordingly harsh. Now the tendency is towards soft words and bon-bons, rewards instead of penalties, in schools and families. Are boys growing to be better men than formerly? Does good behavior grow more luxuriantly from candies than from the switch?

Our own opinion is that there has been an excess of flogging, and from that excess has come the other extreme. There was some wisdom in the ancient and authoritative prescription of the rod, but there has been much folly in its application. There is a tendency in human nature to run things into the ground. A good application of the switch may be good, without necessarily implying that a brutal beating is wholesome.

It requires a nice discrimination to determine the cases where good will follow proper corporeal punishment. Not every father, and, unfortunately, few teachers, possess this discrimination. The subject must be thoroughly understood before venturing upon the dose. The offense must be perfectly known, and without exception healthy moral flaggelation must accompany the bodily penalty. Because a majority of teachers, otherwise excellent, are not competent to handle the rod, it may be well to banish it from schools. Then what shall be substituted? Clearly in cities and large towns having a well organized system of public schools the school authorities may substitute decrees of banishment in case of persistent offending. There must be rules, and every rule must have an adequate penalty for its breach. But in the country, where necessarily the government of the school is placed wholly in the hands of the teacher, and he is held responsible for its success, it will be more difficult to name a substitute. It is a question worthy of candid consideration.

GENERAL GRANT.

HIS PLAN OF RETRENCHMENT.

The New York Tribune says editorially this morning:—

We have splendid news from Washington. General Grant has taken a step which will endear him still more to every patriot. Instead of waiting for the hour of his new office, he announces a "policy" that will do more good than a thousand orations. He demands from Congress honesty, and economy. The time to squander has ceased; and if our easy-going Representatives intend to vote millions for every plausible scheme, it must be done over the veto of the new President. This simple declaration will save millions to a depleted Treasury. We must pay our debts before incurring new ones, and especially we must stop the wholesale waste of money and lands covered by the many railroad schemes. We accept General Grant's declaration in the joyful hope that we have seen an end of real estate speculations in the unprofitable dominions of other countries, of immense "lawyer's fees" for Washington lobbyists—of land grants and Indian treaties—and of the astounding frauds in the collection of the customs and taxes. Let economy be the word, and the country will respond! Any Congressman who presumes to stand in the way will be rebuked by the people. General Grant is right, and the nation will give him an enthusiastic support.

—We look for his coming as men who gaze through the darkest night, and fervently yearn for morning. This is a sign of the coming day, and we feel assured that it will be a day of glorious and beneficent works, of economy, honesty, and peace.

HUNTINGDON, PA., Dec. 21, 1868.

The ride up the Broad Top Railroad is not very interesting; the road is poor in its appointments, and the country through which it passes uncattractive. Tussey Mountain, the base of which it follows, contains, however, a vein of valuable fossil ore, which is opened at numerous points, and mined at a limited extent for the distant furnaces. An experimental furnace is, however, nearly finished at Riddlesburg, which may lead to a large consumption on the spot of the coals and the ores of this region.

At Bloody Run, a village on the old turnpike, and near the present termination of the Railroad, there are large deposits of hematite ore, in close proximity to the fossil vein, and at Lemon's furnace is another large body of similar ore, which has been recently purchased by the Cambria Iron Company, for the use of their extensive rail mills at Johnstown. This same company have also recently purchased a tract of fossil ore land on Canoe Mountain, some few miles east of Hollidaysburg on the canal, and besides have contracted with the owners of Barree Forge for some three thousand tons per month of fossil ore from "Short" Mountain—a continuation of "Tussey"—on the Pennsylvania Railroad, ten miles west of Huntingdon.

The discovery of much of this iron ore is due to the necessity of supplying the rolling mill at Johnstown, whose operations have been so extensive that the original source of supply near the works have become nearly exhausted; and besides a better quality of material became necessary in order to manufacture the steel rail now so much in demand.

The enlargement of the canal to this point has been provided for by an arrangement between all the canal companies between here and tidewater. It is to be completed by 1871. It is said to be necessary, in order to relieve the railroad of the increasing freight which does not pay sufficient to compensate for the wear and tear of the road, besides interfering with the through freight which is concentrated on this end of the road.

The United States Senator question is much discussed at Bedford, as well as other places I have visited, and there appears to be great unanimity of sentiment in favor of Mr. Scott; he is everywhere spoken of as possessing every qualification desirable for the office; it was not my fortune to meet with him, but his friends assert that they have good reason to hope for his success. My next letter will be from Hollidaysburg.

Music.

I cannot refrain from occupying a small space in your widely circulating columns, respecting an intellectual treat given to the citizens of Philadelphia by OLE BULL at the Academy of Music Saturday evening, 19th inst., on which occasion it was my good fortune to be there. I shall not attempt to describe his wonderful performance, for this would be a fruitless task. I will however try to give you some faint idea of his execution. The Concert opened with a grand Fantasia by his pianist Egbert Lansing. Next in order came Ole Bull on the violin in a slow movement (term largo) He did several things worthy of particular notice. The sound commenced in a distance, scarcely audible, each note increasing gently without a jar until the climax was reached, at which time the audience could not help applauding.—The next feature was the double stacato on one string, resembling clearly that of two; then came the flageolet notes. I have heard them played singly and it was considered the heighth of skill, but never before have I heard them performed in thirds and octaves. At the close of this composition the applause was tremendous and did not cease until the artist came out again, this time playing Sweet Home. Such sounds I never heard before; the air throughout was played upon one string, then in two parts, finally in four, doing the work of four violins at one time. The next compositing in many particulars was similar to that of the former, in execution. This had the effect of bringing him out again, when he played the Last Rose of Summer; the pizzicato and bowing were followed up so closely you would have thought it was two instruments at the same time. The next in order was a regular hoe-down; the jerks and twangs of the old-fiddler were perfect. Another striking feature was a trill in double notes. His imitation of the bagpipes was good; in truth, he imitated almost every instrument. I had almost forgotten the imitation of the Mocking Bird; this was very fine. I question very much if Paganinni was living whether he would not be in the background. Heretofore the great annoyance of tuning is dispensed with at his entertainments. Such extraordinary performance must please and gratify the most fastidious critic. I might say a word with regard to the other performers but let this suffice for the present.

CARRIER'S ADDRESS.

Good morning, sir—Good morning ma'am—
This New Year's morning, here I am;
My annual wishes to express
In honored poesy's modest dress.
If word of mine can light your eye
With sparkle of the azure sky;
Or through the spirit send a thrill
Of highest joy, my mission will
Its noblest purpose then have served,
And I shall leave you strongly nerved,
To scatter in the coming year,
My weekly, gossip fun and tear.
But don't expect this little lay,
To throw the past upon your way;
Its faults and follies, sorrows too
Are buried 'neath the weeping yew;
There let the willows mourn the dead,
While drooping roses deck their bed.
But if fond memories bubble up,
To overflow life's joyous cup;
I would the stream should ever flow,
While living pulse shall beat below.
Now while the snow bonds down the fir—

And icy winds the branches stir,
And frozen cascades glint the sun;
Let merry hearts all blood in one;
And as the changing seasons run,
That make the year we're entering on,
From flowery spring to autumn's dies,
May happiness be each one's prize;
And to this end let love and truth
Enrobe you in perennial youth;
And they will crystallize a gem
To shine in virtue's diadem.

☞ The undersigned take this method of expressing their gratitude to a large number of friends and members of the Baptist Church and congregation of Huntingdon, for their surprise visit on New Year's night; at which time they left us a large store of necessaries for the family, consisting of clothing, groceries and provisions. Among the pleasantries of the evening was a sham wedding performed by Esquire ——, the fee for which was promptly handed over to us as remitted for the occasion. We cannot but desire that while we are the recipients of so many favors indicating the kind regards of friends for us, that they would also remember our Divine Lord, and be as faithful to Him—always enjoying his smiles.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

TESTIMONY of a PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

DR. J. F. D. SMITH, a skilful and widely known physician of twenty years standing in Lancaster, Pa., gives his opinion of a popular household remedy, in the following letter:

LANCASTER, PA., November 23, 1868.

DR. S. B. HARTMAN & CO.—Dear Sirs: During the past eight years I have had frequent opportunities to study the effect of Mishler's Herb Bitters upon persons suffering from Dyspepsia, Loss of Nervous Energy, Sexual Weakness, Diarrhœa, &c. Remedies were prescribed by other physicians according to the Homœopathic, Allopathic and Hydropathic schools, and only a comparatively few permanent cures effected. On the other hand, I have never known the Bitters to fail producing the desired result, and I still use them in the treatment, of such complaints, with the highest success. I have no hesitation in saying that I consider Mishler's Herb Bitters the most efficacious remedy ever discovered for diseases arising from a disordered Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, Lungs and Heart.

Yours truly, J. T. BAKER, M. D.

A REMARKABLE SET.—Old farmer Gruff was one morning tugging away with all his might and main at a barrel of apples, which he was endeavoring to get up the cellar stairs, and calling at the top of his lungs for one of his boys to lend a helping hand, but in vain.

When he had, after an infinite amount of sweating and puffing, accomplished the task, and just when they were not needed, of course, the "boys" made their appearance.

"Where have you been, and what have you been about, I'd like to know, that you couldn't hear my call?" inquired the farmer in an angry tone, and addressing the eldest.

"Out in the shop settin' the saw," replied the youth.

"And you Dick?"

"Out in the barn settin' the hen."

"And you, sir?"

"Up in Granny's room settin' the clock."

"And you, young man?"

"Up in the garret setsin' the trap."

"And now master Fred, where were you, and what were you setting?" asked the old farmer of his youngest progeny, the asperity of his temper being somewhat softened by his amusing category of answers. "Come let's hear!"

"On the door step, settin' still," replied the young hopeful seriously.

"A remarkable set I must confess," added the amused sire, dispersing the grinning group with a wave of his hand.

BEN. FRANKLIN AND PHILADELPHIA MERCHANTS.—When Benjamin Franklin was a printer in Philadelphia, it seems he published a newspaper.—Among other things that received censure at his hands were certain modes of transacting business by the merchants of Philadelphia. He handled the knaves in such a manner as to arouse their wrath, and calling a meeting among themselves they waited upon the sturdy printer, and demanded to know what he meant.

"Here," said they, "we have been patronizing and supporting you, and this is our reward. You must change this mode of doing or we'll show you that the merchants are a power you may not trifle with. Without our patronage where would you stand?"

"Gentlemen of the Merchants' Committee," said the polite printer, "I am as you see, very busy now, but call at my house this evening for dinner, I shall consider the matter over with you in a friendly manner." The committee congratulating themselves that old Ben. was evidently frightened, came to the dinner at the hour named but were surprised to find nothing on the table but mush—made of ill-ground corn—and a large pitcher of milk. The merchants' committee not being used to coarse fare could do nothing but watch the healthy printer while he made a hearty meal. Rising from the table he addressed the committee thus: "Gentlemen, he that can live comfortably on such food can live without your patronage. I shall cease to attack those practices when you cease to practice them, and not before. Gentlemen, good night."

And for many a year Philadelphia merchants were better and far more honest, owing to this incident.

☞An Englishman had heard of the Yankee habit of bragging, and thought he would cut the comb of that propensity.—He saw some huge water-melons on a market woman's stand, and walking up to her, and pointing to them with a look of disappointment, said:

"What! don't you raise bigger apples than these in America?"

The woman looked at him one moment, and retorted—

"Apples! Anybody might know you was an Englishman. Them's huckleberries!"

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Colds, Coughs, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has any one remedy been so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or to more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The simplest and humblest of its cases in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either resident in, or traveling through unhealthy localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, frequently curing many truly remarkable cases, where other medicines had failed.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold all around the world.
